For the last two months, beginning with the Norwegian crypto exchange's move to London on April 14, blockchain technology giant IBM has worked with the Irish Digital Innovation Centre (IDIC) to develop the potential of blockchain. On Wednesday, October 29, IDIC announced the selection of two start-ups to join the blockchain accelerator, the results of which were in line with industry experts' predictions.

At the end of the four-month program, each accelerator participant will receive €250,000 ($285,000) in cash investment for further development. Partnership The partnership between IDIC and IBM was announced in June at the European Capital of Innovation summit in Dublin. In a press release from IDIC, the center's managing director David Hughes stated that the deal will make blockchain a mainstream component of Irish life. He went on to stress 6d1f23a050
