At each table, coaches saw students quickly glance through scores in their category. Students who were struggling with mental math were likely to stop and consider if they had tried the problem in class to understand a concept better or if they had been careless and simply looked the problems up. There are a variety of online tutorials and games available to help students strengthen their math skills. My favorite is Mental Math Games in which students are asked to solve five problems in which the answer is immediately given. These include a variety of common math problems such as "Find the difference between a list of numbers" or "Find the total of 4, 2 and 11." Each time they complete a game, they receive feedback from the computer on whether they are right or wrong. I have my students play these 1cdb3666d
