Support for full keyboard macros (shortcut macro) – the only caveat being that you need to have a Microsoft Keyboard driver installed on the system in order to use these macros. You can define keystroke to run application with any number of arguments.

If you define a single argument, the application will run, but it will not be able to quit the application. Keyboard macros are useful in many ways. First, you can launch a great deal of applications by pressing a single keystroke, and only a single keystroke. Second, macros can be used in combination with hotkeys. Moreover, macros can be used to run any application, and not just a single application. For instance, you can create a keystroke to open File Explorer and to start a specific subfolder. In this manner, you will not have to open File Explorer and search for the subfolder you are looking for. The macro editor The main purpose of the program is to provide a simple, easy to use interface for creating keyboard macros. On top of that, the program has a number of useful features such as the keystroke history, which is shared between macros. If you miss a keystroke, you can simply delete it from the history. The user interface The program has a simple user interface with a number of options. The app has a main window, which is followed by the option to define a key to launch a macro and the keystroke history. The program allows you to define multiple macros to be run in one instance of the application. To do this, simply check the box “repeat current macro” to start the same macro sequence again. The program also allows you to save macros on a USB flash drive and to load them from there. A simple, easy to use application that works flawlessly. It is easy to install and use, and the only thing you will need is to install the USB keyboard driver. Pros: – Simple, easy to use – Works flawlessly – A number of hotkeys for launching a macro with a single keystroke Cons: – Needs a keyboard driver to work (which, depending on the system, may or may not be installed) We have read the license and we accept it. 1- We accept that the license is without limitation, save for the sole prohibition of making the product the subject of a commercial use. 2- We accept that the source code of the product is always available for free on the website 77a5ca646e
